The provisions contained in Regulation 6.1.6.2. in Chapter 6 of the NSE (Futures & Options) Trading Regulations are amended through insertion of the following clause as clause (v) to the said Regulation :—

QUOTE

(v) (a) The Trading Members shall keep the dematerialised securities of Constituents in a separate beneficiary account distinct from the beneficiary account maintained for holding their own dematerialised securities. No delivery towards the own transactions of the Trading Members shall be allowed to be made from the account meant for Constituents. For the purpose, every Trading Member is required to open a beneficiary account in the name of the Trading Member exclusively for the securities of the Constituents (hereinafter, to be referred to as "Constituents beneficiary account"). A Trading Member may keep one consolidated Constituents' beneficiary account for all its Constituents or different accounts for each of its Constituents as it may deem fit.

(b) Securities to be delivered into Constituents beneficiary account: No security shall be delivered into Constituents beneficiary account, other than

- A. securities held or received on account of Constituents towards margin or as security deposit
- B. securities for replacement of those which may be mistake or accident have been drawn from the account.

(c) Securities to be withdrawn from Constituents beneficiary account: No security shall be drawn from Constituents beneficiary account other than

- A. when they are properly required, for delivery to or on behalf of Constituents; for or towards meeting the Constituents' margin or pay-in obligations;
- B. what are drawn under Constituents' authority or in respect of which there is a liability of Constituents to the Trading Member;

C. securities which by mistake or accident have been deposited into the account

Provided further that the securities so drawn shall not in any case exceed the securities so held for the time being for the respective Constituent.
